NOTEBOOKS

Dear Members,

Welcome to this issue of the Speech Therapy Notebooks Club members magazine. For many of you it's your first issue and I'm excited to get your input for future issues so that our little team can bring you exactly what you need, each and every month!

As a wife to a busy Irish farmer and Mom to two wonderful children, I care passionately about SLPs claiming back their "me time" (we call it #SLPMeTime in the Club). You cannot give your all to your students unless you have first given that time to taking care of yourself!

I know about SLP printables and what it takes to make great and easily available therapy materials. I created the Speech Therapy Notebooks Club to give you back some of that precious time for yourself and your family.

No more last minute Sunday evening scrambles to get organized for school! I am so happy that you found us!

#SLPMETIME

Being an SLP is a demanding role and sometimes we can find ourselves in a position where the job spills over into everyday life. When that happens, we seek support (both practical and moral) from other Notebookers to find a solution and ultimately to find our way back to balance.

Family time, hobby time, work out time, or just “me” time! We need this in our lives to be an effective SLP. Notebookers support each other to hold space in our lives to nurture our physical and mental health.
