

Irregular verb pairs

*Please note - this game is a variation of I have / who has ? However, the start and finish point has been left deliberately open ended so you can choose who starts. Also, you may find you need to remove a pair of cards from the game due to regional accent variation and so the game will still function in this case.

On the following pages you will find pairs of irregular verb cards. Separate them into single pictures and their matching text cards. Give one card to each child in the group, making sure that you give out both cards in the pair.

Divide the group into 2 halves and tell one half that they have the questions, and the others that they have the answers.

The student with "question" cards take turns to ask the group, "Who has a word that is the irregular past tense verb of... (sit)?"

The students can then give each other a high five (or whatever "winning" signal you choose and return their cards to the teacher.

If playing with an individual student, you can vary the game slightly by playing yourself and holding the question cards while the student has the answers. You can then ask, "Do you have a word that is the irregular past tense verb of... (sit)?"

Send the black & white version home for practice.

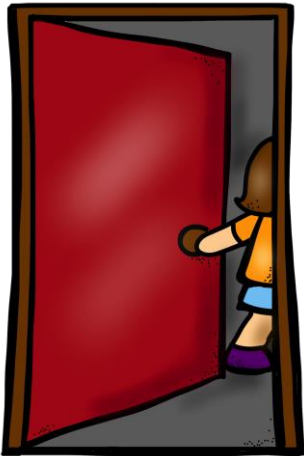

hang

hung

pay

paid

leave

left

write

wrote

draw

drew

sing

sang

swing

swung

run

ran

dig

dug

swim

swam

drink

drank

build

built

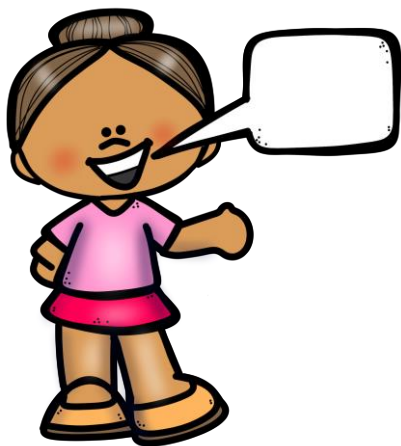

read

read

eat

ate

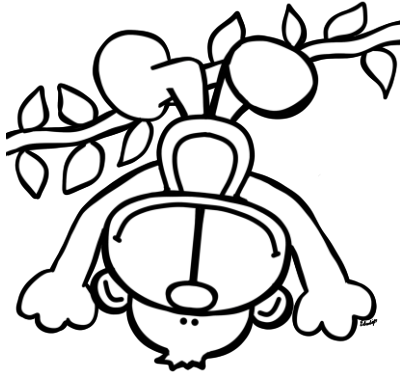

speak

spoke

sit

sat

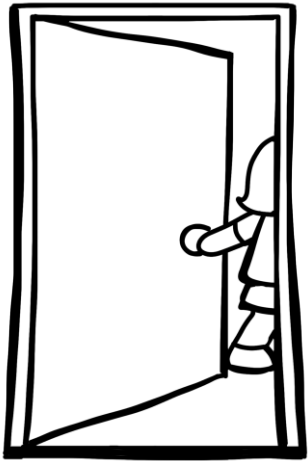

hang

hung

pay

paid

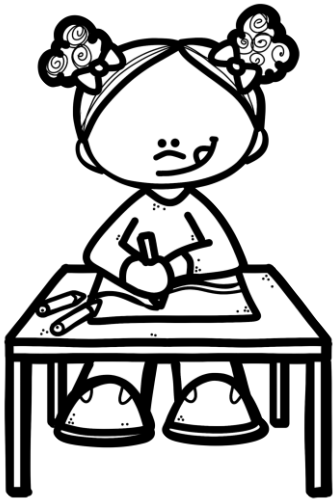

leave

left

write

wrote

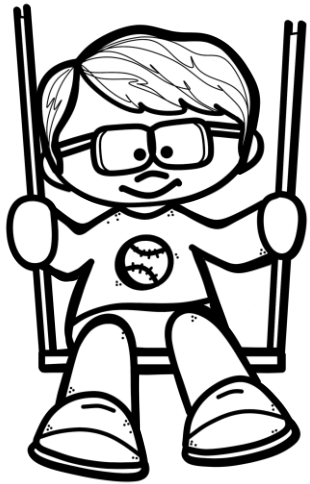

draw

drew

sing

sang

swing

swung

run

ran

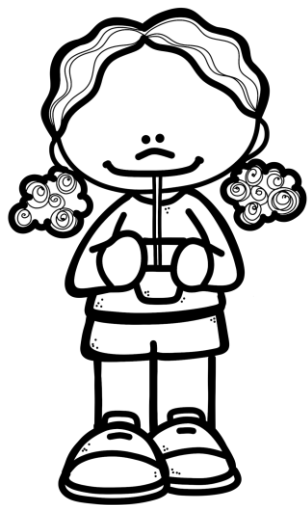

dig

dug

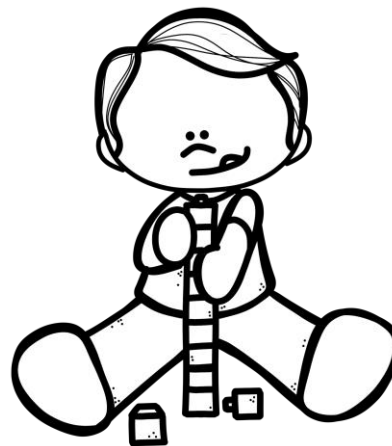

swim

swam

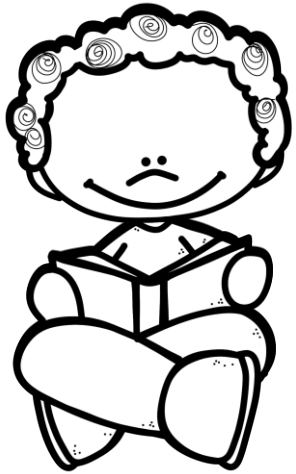

drink

drank

build

built

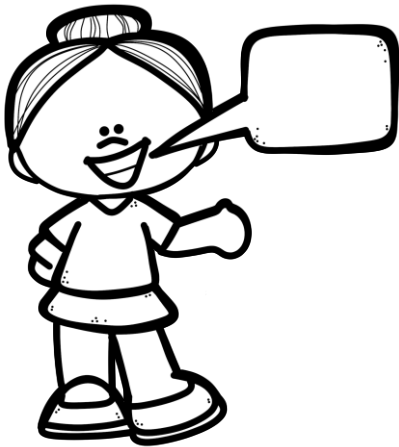

read

read

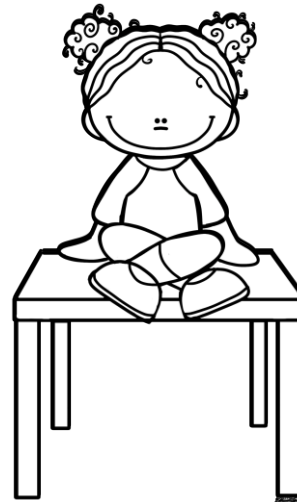

eat

ate

speak

spoke

sit

sat